

Abstract

Title: Evaluation of the number drowned people in the Czech Republic in the years 1994-2010

Aim of the thesis: Evaluate the number of drowning people in the Czech republic.

Methods: Searches of available sources. Collecting data from the Czech Statistical office, media, information portals.

Results: All the processed data was given in the context of the current causes of drowning people in natural waters, which can not be assessed to the short time generalize. In the month of July was a positive correlation between the number of the people drowned and the temperature. Results of this work can not be compared with foreign countries and assume that the results will be the same.

Keywords: Drowning, International Classificasion of Diseases, Water Rescue Service, the casuse of drowning.